I am 64 years young and fortunately quite healthy.

I retired from teaching high school English after 40 years. The last 35 were at Pocahontas County High School where I was the head basketball coach for past 30 years.

My summer job in high school was as a commentator on the Cass Scenic Railroad. I did the run to Whittaker Station while my great-uncle Warren (Twierd) Blackhurst did the Bald Knob run.

I am currently the owner and developer of historic Fort Warwick in Green Bank, WV. I have had a crash course in local colonial history since we began doing archeology on the site in 2004. We have hosted students from the local schools, the Governor's Science Camp, and Charleston Catholic for major digs on the site.

I enjoy playing tennis and making maple syrup for sale and personal consumption.
